Marshall Carrington Found Guilty of the Harden Burglary.

JURY WAS OUT SEVERAL HOURS

Before it Could Reach its Verdict, Unable for a Time to Agree on the Sufficiency of the Proof of the Mercer County Conviction--Carrington Went on the Stand in his own Behalf and Denied Everything.

The trial of the young colored man, Marshall Carrington, indicted for the sensational Harden burglary, ended last night in the criminal court, Judge Hugus on the bench, the jury bringing in a verdict of guilty as charged in the indictment and agreeing to the sufficiency of the proof of a former conviction in Mercer county, this state. Carrington may be sentenced to serve fifteen years for this crime, and cannot be sentenced to serve less than six years. The penalty for the crime is one to ten years imprisonment, and the former conviction counts for five years additional confinement.

The jury got the case at 9:05 o'clock yesterday afternoon. At 6 o'clock the jury went to the hotel for supper, and at 7:30 resumed its consideration of the case. Nothing was heard from the jury room until 8:45 o'clock, when the judge was informed that the jury had a question to ask the court. Thereupon the jury was brought into the court room, and the question was asked whether the jury could eliminate from consideration the former conviction in the circuit court of Mercer county. The court replied that the jury must come to some conclusion on this phase of the case as well as on the burglary itself. Then the jury again retired, and at 9:15 p. m. came in with its verdict, which was that the prisoner was found guilty as charged in the indictment. The court inquired if the jury had found the prisoner guilty in the Mercer county case as well.

"Guilty of both," responded Foreman George Heil.

Thereupon the form of the verdict was changed to read as follows:

"We, the jury find the defendant guilty as charged in the within indictment, and we further find that he has been sentenced in the United States in the circuit court of Mercer county, West Virginia, to confinement and punishment in the penitentiary."

The jury was polled and each member acquiesced in the verdict as read. Mr. Charles Schuck, counsel for the prisoner, made the usual motion for the setting aside of the verdict and the granting of a new trial, which will be argued later. The court and attorneys conferred with regard to the time when the trial of Carrington on the charge of purloining a watch from the Harden home on another occasion would be begun, but no decision was reached. This matter will likely be decided to-day.

Carrington received the verdict without apparent feeling. There was a considerable attendance of spectators at the time the verdict was rendered.

The first witness yesterday was Otis Summers, a colored man, who testified regarding tan shoes worn by Carrington before the burglary.

Arch Johnson, another colored man, testified to having been with Carrington at Clark's poker room before the burglary, and that he wore tan shoes.

John Williams, employed at Mrs. Harden's, testified to the shoes being found after the burglary, and that he had seen Carrington wear such shoes.

George Wilson testified that he had come over from the Island on the suspension bridge at 2:12 o'clock, on the morning of the burglary. Just when coming off the bridge he saw Marshall Carrington standing near the fence at the rear of Logan's drug store, which is near the scene of the burglary. He had said, "Hallo, Marshall," and walked on. Carrington had responded to his salutation.

Mrs. Harden was recalled by the state and testified that Carrington and Carrington's wife were familiar with her manner of keeping money in the house, and that they knew she had more money than usual between the first and tenth of each month.

Dr. John L. Dickey testified that Carrington's ankle had been sprained and that his shin was scratched. He believed the injuries came from dropping from a considerable height on something sharp.

Dr. G. A. Aschmann testified to having been awakened by Mrs. Harden's cries, and that he had found her lying on the floor of her room, insensible, her neck black from being choked and her face scratched and bitten.

The only witness for the defense was the defendant himself. Carrington said he spent the night before the robbery in saloons and poker rooms about town. He left the White Cloud about 2 o'clock and went to his home. En route he fell and sprained his ankle, he said. He heard the clock strike 2 after he had reached his home. He was awakened the next morning by Chief of Police Bennett, who searched the house and then arrested him. On cross-examination he denied any connection with the Harden burglary, and also denied having been convicted in the circuit court of Mercer county some nine or ten years ago. He could not remember where he spent the years 1888, 1889 and 1890, the period when the state asserts he was serving a sentence at the Moundsville penitentiary on the Mercer county conviction.

No other witnesses were called by the defense, and in the afternoon the arguments began. For the state Mr. W. C. Meyer, the prosecuting attorney, opened, making a very strong plea for conviction. He was followed by Mr. Charles J. Schuck, whose handling of the rather weak case of the defense was remarkably strong and elicited a great deal of favorable comment from those who heard the young lawyer's address to the jury. The closing address was by Mr. John A. Howard, who was associated with the prosecuting attorney in the conduct of the prosecution, and of course it goes without saying that he made the most of the overwhelming mass of testimony which the state had built in support of the indictment.
